KATANA

Ever since Brad Pitt rented a section of the restaurant for Jennifer's birthday bash, Katana has been white hot, nonstop. For the first few months, the buzz hindered more than helped, though, as the waitstaff wasn't able to keep up with the crush and made no effort to explain the confusing robata-yaka menu. But now that the buzz has evened out, so has the service, making it much easier to enjoy the food, which is a fun mix of grilled and raw Japanese specialties. Designer extraordinaire Dodd Mitchell whammed his magic on the industrial Zen space, which screams, "Order some sake!" 8439 W. Sunset Blvd., West Hollywood, 323.650.8585
